

The Holidays are a Celebration of Family

Dear Caregiver,

Take advantage of this time together to talk about the current and future needs of your loved ones. It's important to discuss:

What is their level of mobility? Are they planning any surgeries? What sort of home modifications are needed? What about emergencies you can't plan for?

A simple solution to many of these concerns, yet often overlooked, is an overbed table.

Have you ever thought about why every single room in a hospital has one? With over 5,000 hospitals in the US, they must be onto something, right? They know that overbed tables bring comfort, convenience, and safety to the bedside. So why not enjoy those things at home too?

When we set out to design this product, we spoke to countless family caregivers and people with limited mobility to identify all the features that would make their lives easier. The result was the atHand Overbed Table System.

How can it help you?

It can be hard living with limited mobility and even harder for your loved one to rely on others to help with even the simplest tasks. Whether they need help reaching a light switch or charging a cell phone, everyday activities can quickly feel cumbersome.

The at-home care experts at Integrant designed the perfect bedside product to help complete everyday tasks with ease and without injury; saving money on in-home care or medical costs due to an accident.

Don't settle for them always having to ask for help or risk injury by getting up to retrieve items when it's not safe. The atHand Overbed Table System keeps everything within reach.

Imagine This:

Your loved one is on bed rest after a hip replacement and wants to turn off the lamp that's on the nightstand. She doesn't want to disturb anyone by asking for help with the simple task, so she stretches in an attempt to reach the lamp.

In a split second, she falls out of bed, landing on her wrist. Not only does she have to endure the pain of the injury, but now she needs to revisit the emergency room which will result in yet another large medical bill and an even longer road to recovery.

This is just one example of how having items within easy reach could have prevented an injury that leads to expensive medical costs. These scenarios are more common than you think.
